

Feast of Formats

We rode our motorcycles to the restaurant down the road.
The barman from Boston brought us all a bellini.
We sat for a meal
And ordered antipasti,
And chomped and slurped until we burped.
Garlic bread, pizza, polenta, and pasta;
Mussels, clams, calamari, and lobster!
Just when we thought we were full and done,
We tried the affogato, tiramisu, and panettone,
Cannoli, cassata, zabaglione, and panna cotta.
Then coffee,
Espresso, and lots of Sambuca.
The bill was sky high. It was worth every penny.
We rode home and fell into bed, languid and happy.